

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a laundry device, and more particularly, to a laundry device of a new structure, in which a depressed portion is formed along a circumference of a portion of a hole in a cabinet for press fit to a groove in a holding member of a power cord assembly, thereby maintaining a secure joining state of the power cord assembly with the cabinet.